

AP&L, Ark-La in Feud Over Serving Base

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Congressional investigators were reported in town today to look into the proposed sale of Arkansas Power and Light Co., electrically for the huge Little Rock Air Force Base housing development.

A spokesman for Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., said Ark-La was opposing the sale of AP&L power and wanted to supply gas for heating the 1,355 houses which will be built at the air base.

The Arkansas Gazette quoted Chairman Mahon (D-Tex.) of a House Military Affairs Appropriations subcommittee as saying in Washington that the probe was requested by the Arkansas congressional delegation. The Gazette said three of the subcommittee's staff workers would begin the investigation in Little Rock today.

E. E. Harrell of Shreveport, La., Ark-La's general sales manager, said the gas company is seeking cancellation of a 2 1/2 million-dollar contract for the air base houses which is held by Miles Construction Corp., of Los Angeles, Calif.

Under the contract, the Miles firm is to equip the houses with electric heat pumps and other electric appliances.

AP&L would provide the electricity by increasing the amount it now supplies the air base under another contract.

Harrell said Ark-La could furnish fuel for gas appliances at 130,000 a year less than AP&L's quoted power rates.

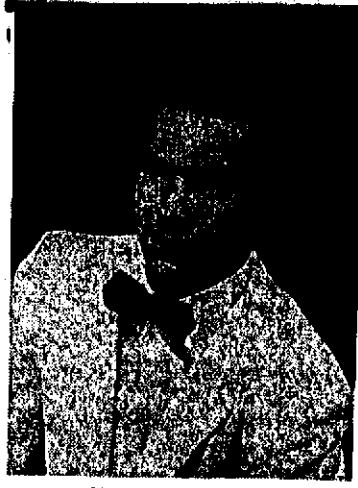

William M. Shepherd, AP&L vice president, said the Air Force and Defense Departments—which had a choice of electricity or gas—had proved that electricity could be furnished cheaper than gas.

Neither company disclosed its exact rates.

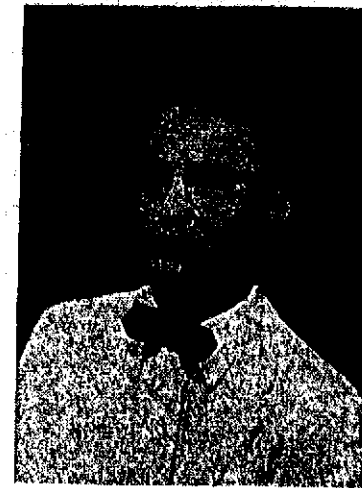

Ground was broken for the air base housing units about two months ago but actual construction has not started.

The architect for the project is the firm of Wittenberg, Delony and Davidson of Little Rock.

Tax Petition Drive to Open in Little Rock

HOPE (AP) — Hope Publisher Alex H. Washburn announced today he would open a headquarters in Little Rock tomorrow to seek support for his movement to repeal the recent sales tax increase voted by the General Assembly.

Washburn said a similar headquarters would be opened soon in Pine Bluff to work Jefferson County.

The Little Rock office will be located on the mezzanine of the Grady Manning Hotel and Washburn said he had called a meeting at 7 p. m. there tomorrow for "any friends of our movement."

He said supporters of the repeal movement were invited to the "informal meeting" at which Washburn will preside.

Tonight the Hope publisher is scheduled to speak at the Fort Smith Labor Temple on his campaign under the auspices of AFL-CIO. All working people have been invited, he said.

Washburn is seeking more than 60,000 signatures on petitions calling for a popular vote on the sales tax increase. He has opposed the increase on grounds that property taxes have escaped increase to the detriment of the "working people."

State Balanced Farm Program Is Set Up

The Hempstead County Steering Committee for the annual Arkansas Balance Farming Program and the Farm Family of the year met last week in the Chamber of Commerce office to set up plans for the 1957 contest.

Mrs. Charles Wylie, Hempstead County Home Demonstration Agent, was named to head the Committee for 1957. Mr. Cecil Guthrie, Hempstead County AFC office manager, was selected as vice-chairman. Represented at the meeting was: Mr. Dale Flake, Area Sales Manager and Buddy Harris, Agriculture Representative for Arkansas Power and Light Company of Hot Springs; Oliver Adams, Hempstead County Extension Agent; R. E. Jackson, Vocational Agriculture Teacher, Hope High School; George Brown, SCS Supervisor for Hempstead County; B. N. Holt, Manager of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, and Cecil Guthrie. Other members of the Committee unable to attend the meeting are: Mrs. Wylie, W. M. Sparks, F. H. A. Supervisor for Hempstead County; W. M. Sparks, Vocational Agriculture Teacher of Springfield; William Lowe, Vocational Agriculture Teacher of Bleavins; Roy Thrash, Chairman of Agriculture, Commerce and Hope Chamber of Commerce; and Cecil Bittle, Director of University of Arkansas Experiment Station.

The purpose of the Arkansas Balance Farming Program is to improve Arkansas Agriculture through the adoption of improved farm and home practices, the stimulation and encouragement of rural leadership and the establishment of better community values. The program is a means of disseminating information on improved farm and home making practices and giving recognition and encouragement to rural leaders. Enrollment will be secured by nomination. The farm families who are doing an outstanding job of farming and home-making and who are making a contribution to community and county development, should be nominated for the honor of "Farm Family of the Year."

Those nominations may be made by the county committee, community organization or any individuals. Nominations should be sent to the Chairman of the County Committee or the Hope Chamber of Commerce, the sponsoring organization.

Mrs. and Mrs. Luther Spicer of McCaskill were the Hempstead County winners in the land ownership division and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hampton were the Southwest Arkansas area winners in the tenant division in 1956. Both of these families attended the annual Awards Luncheon at the Marion Hotel and a tea at the Governor's Mansion in Little Rock, last year.

The Committee is looking forward to having a number of outstanding Hempstead County farm families enter the competition this year.

$1.8 Million Rate Hike Is Asked by AP&L

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Power and Light Co., today said that it would apply for a rate increase of about $1,800,000, most of which would be borne by commercial customers.

AP&L President Robert L. Ritchie said that they would file the proposed rate schedule with the Public Service Commission after hearings on a cost of service study made by PSC-appointed rate experts.

Ritchie said that the new rates would mean an increase of only 20 cents a month per customer. The company said it would ask for $581,583 additional from residential customers and 1,200,000 from commercial consumers.

A hearing on the cost of service study, which found that AP&L needs approximately 4 million dollars a year more to bring its return to 6 per cent, started today before the PSC.

Validity of Zoning Law Is Upheld

By LEON HATCH

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today upheld validity of a zoning ordinance under which the city of Jonesboro forbids the erection of business buildings in sections designated for exclusive residential use.

The court said that last year Paul Arnold applied to the city for a permit to construct a restaurant building in a residential section and that even though the permit was refused Arnold erected the building and operated a restaurant until he was arrested for violation of the zoning ordinance. Arnold was fined in both Jonesboro Municipal Court and, on appeal, in Craighead Circuit Court.

In his appeal to the Supreme Court, he contended, as he had in the lower courts, that the original 1931 Jonesboro zoning ordinance and an amending 1951 ordinance were invalid because the city failed to follow the procedure required by state zoning acts.

The Supreme Court rejected this claim, holding that the state law was followed.

The Supreme Court reduced from $1,200 to $460, plus interest a judgment obtained in Washington Chancery Court by William M. Horton and wife against Michael McIlvenny and wife for an alleged breach of contract for sale of real estate.

The Hortons were the prospective sellers and the McIlvennys the prospective buyers in the transaction.

After the deal did not materialize, the Chancery Court awarded the Hortons the $1,200 which had been placed in escrow as earnest money. The Supreme Court held that the Hortons were entitled to recover only actual damages resulting from the alleged breach and said the Hortons' testimony placed their earnest money at $460.

Miller Chancery Court was affirmed in canceling an usurious contract for sale of an automobile from dealer Donald W. Jones to Woodrow Jones. Suit was brought by Woodrow Jones. Denzil Jones contended, the Supreme Court said, "that he did not intend to charge excessive interest and merely made a mistake in the amount of the premium for insurance on the vehicle."

2 Drown as Flood Hits Texas Town; Arkansas Under Storm Warning

High Winds at Ashdown Cause Some Damage

By The Associated Press

High winds and thunderstorms struck at scattered points in Arkansas today and the U. S. Weather Bureau forecast turbulent weather and the possibility of tornadoes for almost every section of the state.

High winds caused widespread damage at Ashdown, in southwest Arkansas, and at Russellville, in the north. There was an unconfirmed report of a tornado in the air at Judsonia, the little north-east Arkansas town that was almost demolished by a 1952 twister.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Here is a severe weather warning from the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock which supersedes one issued at 7 a. m. today.

Severe thunderstorm activity with possibility of a few tornadoes expected to occur from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m. along and 40 miles west and 80 miles east of a line from Texarkana to Plippen.

The warning covers more of Arkansas than the previous warning.

The Southwest Gas and Electric Co. at Center Point, Howard County, advised the Weather Bureau at Shreveport that a tornado passed in a nearby area about 300 feet in the air.

Winds blew down many trees and unroofed at least one house in rural areas of Howard County, in southwest Arkansas.

At the Unity Community, near Nashville, the house of Earl Jones was reported blown down.

Mrs. Jones was reported injured, apparently not seriously.

There had been no other reports of injuries.

Accurate reports on the extent of damage were not immediately available because communication lines were cut off in areas where the winds hit.

More than two inches of rain fell in the Jonesboro area, causing a flash flood at Veno, 11 miles from Jonesboro.

The St. Louis-San Francisco railroad track was declared unsafe at two points north and south of Bono as water washed away portions of embankments under the track. Rail traffic was re-routed over Missouri Pacific lines via Nettleton and Noble.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock issued two severe weather warnings both mentioning the possibility of tornadoes which covered almost all sections of Arkansas. The last warning, issued shortly after 11 a. m. and scheduled to expire at 4 p. m., said that turbulent weather was expected along and 40 miles west and 80 miles east of a line from Texarkana, in the southwest corner of the state, to Plippen, near the Missouri border in north central Arkansas.

Sheriff Audrey Thrash said that damage was slight from high wind that hit Ashdown about 10:30 a. m. Many trees were reported down and most telephone circuits in the area were out of commission.

Dr. J. H. McClanahan

Baptist Church Here Has a New Pastor

Sunday, April 12, Dr. John H. McClanahan, Assistant Professor in Psychology of Religion and Pastoral Care, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, accepted the call to become pastor of the First Baptist Church here.

Dr. McClanahan is a graduate of Little Rock Senior High School, Ouachita Baptist College, Arkadelphia, and received his Th. D. Degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, this year.

Dr. McClanahan is well known throughout the State for his outstanding work while a student at Ouachita College. He has been on the teaching staff of Southern Seminary since September 1955.

Mrs. McClanahan is the daughter of Southern Baptist missionaries to Palestine and was born there while her parents served as missionaries. She is a graduate of Blue Mountain College in Mississippi, and received her Master's Degree from Southern Seminary, Louisville.

The McClanahans have one son, John David, who will be a year old June 1.

Dr. McClanahan will begin his work with the church on the first Sunday in June.

T. H. Buie, 74, of Nevada Co., Dies at Benton

Thomas Franklin Buie, aged 74, long time resident of Nevada County, died Sunday in a Benton hospital.

Survivors included two brothers, Rob Buie of Pine Bluff and J. E. Buie of Prescott, Ariz.

Funeral services will be held at Boughton Baptist Church by the Rev. Lawrence Downan with burial in Missionary Grove Cemetery near Okolona. Time will be announced by Herndon-Cornelius.

Revised Social Standards for University

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A revised set of social standards for students at the University of Arkansas has been approved by the institution's Board of Trustees.

The action here Saturday apparently ended a controversy which started when the Student Senate adopted a set of liberalized regulations which would have permitted drinking in fraternity houses and allowed students to entertain members of the opposite sex in apartments.

The approved social rules prohibit use of alcoholic beverage at any university or student function, in any university building and in any fraternity house. Students also are permitted to entertain members of the opposite sex in apartments except in cases to be defined by the Association of Women Students.

The new regulations were drawn up by the Student Senate and presented for approval after the trustees had vetoed the liberalized rules.

The students originally acted after a student survey showed a majority thought the old rules too strict.

Dr. John T. Caldwell, university president, read the board faculty "explanation" of the professors' part in the matter. It had been reported that the students wanted regulations after the Faculty Senate refused to lay down standards.

Caldwell said this was untrue. The faculty statement—signed by Professors Newton H. Barnett, Ralph Nannhart and Harold D. Hantz—declared that it has not refused to act but had attempted to "move the area of morals controls to a higher plane than it had been treated before." It said that the faculty had recommended continuation of prohibitive rules from a conservative point of view, but that the "over-zealous" students had attacked the matter from an "impractical" permissive view points.

A parent hardly gets through sitting on with his kids before he has to sit up for them.

AEC to Take Precautions in A-tests

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Atomic Energy Commission announced today it will take unusual precautions during the forthcoming Nevada nuclear tests to "hold public exposure to (radioactive) fallout as near zero as possible."

At least one shot will be fired in an underground tunnel. Other test weapons will be suspended from anchored balloons to prevent their fireballs from touching the ground—the source of much radioactive fallout. Only "log-yield" devices will be fired, and only when weather conditions are ideal for limiting fallout.

As a result of these and other "improved controls," the AEC said, "radioactive fallout in the area around the test site is expected to be even lower than the levels which have resulted from previous tests in Nevada."

"For the United States as a whole, average exposures will be small in comparison with the radiation doses normally received from natural 'background' radiation,"

In other parts of the world, fallout levels from these tests will be even lower than in this country, the AEC said.

Julie Wilson, People's Choice Blonde of Year

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The people's choice for blonde of the year seems to be Julie Wilson this season.

And a thousand show world comrades who know the years of struggle and failure that lie behind this tall, breezy Nebraska singer are almost as proud of her success as if it were their own. "You bump your head against every wall in the world," she used to say, "to create something new and fresh—and nothing works. Then suddenly everything you did that was wrong turns out to be right. You have what they're looking for, and you never are the change."

Julie now is atop-drawing supper club performer, making a record sixth appearance at the St. Regis. She is starred in two current movies, "The Strange One" and "This Could Be the Night." Her fabulous 30-gown wardrobe is the envy of almost every other

Ike and Monty Say Meade, Lee Muffed

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — "Ike and 'Monty' says they'd have done a lot of things differently than Lee and Meade if they'd been in command at the Battle of Gettysburg."

After prowling around the famed Civil War battleground, President Eisenhower and British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery agreed both Confederate and Union commanders blundered in the 1863 engagement, and should have been fired.

The two World War II comrades, who led Allied forces to victory over the Nazis, second-guessed Southern Gen. Robert E. Lee and Northern Gen. George G. Meade during Montgomery's weekend stay at the Eisenhower farm, on the edge of the battlefield.

The old friends reached another parting today. Eisenhower planned to stay on at his far through dinner time. Montgomery, now deputy commander of NATO forces in Europe, was due back in Washington for conferences at the Pentagon.

In sum, Eisenhower and Montgomery agreed both sides could have used their cavalry more effectively, that Southern forces should have tried an end run around the North's left flank, and that the charge of Gen. George Pickett's brigade into the muzzles of Yankee cannon was a grave mistake. Montgomery called that charge "monstrous."

Mrs. Thornton, 77, Succumbs at Home Here

Mrs. Theresa Ann Thornton, aged 77, died at her home here Saturday.

Survivors include four sons, Roy and Tay Thornton of Hope, Dewey of Mesa, Arizona and W. E. Thornton of Fontana, Calif.; four daughters, Mrs. Ira West of Glenwood, Mrs. Otis Fagan, Mrs. Ernest Andrews and Mrs. Cecil Cox of Hope.

Five sisters, Mrs. Mary Vaught and Mrs. Milt Henderson of Caddo Gap, Mrs. Walker Horn of Henley, Ark., Mrs. Will Wooten of Akron, Ohio and Mrs. Richard Shackley of the state of Washington; two brothers, Joe Wilson of Hope and Austin Wilson of Caddo Gap.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Monday at Hope Gospel Tabernacle by the Rev. W. C. Land. Burial by Herndon-Cornelius will be in Memory Gardens.

Police Seize a 5-Year-Old Thief

CHICAGO (AP) — Police seized a 5-year-old boy yesterday after, they said, they caught him rifling an auto glove compartment and earlier had watched him attempt to enter half a dozen parked cars.

When two policemen attempted to take the youngster into custody he rolled up the car windows and locked the doors. However, they coaxed him into unlocking the doors when they warned him he might have trouble breathing with the windows closed.

Asked what he was doing in the car, the boy replied, "Looking for money."

"He's the youngest prisoner I've ever seen held for a felony in 34 years on the job," said Police Lt. James E. Gorman, who identified the boy as Michael Finneran.

Gorman said that Michael's father, Edward, 30, when informed of the boy's action, exclaimed:

"The father was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Police said Michael will be turned over to juvenile authorities."

overflowing drainage ditches, but the rain stopped before 11 a.m. and the water was expected to drain off quickly. Most of the thunderstorms occurred early today, but the Weather Bureau's regular forecast called for continued thunderstorms activity and said that some of the rains may be accompanied by locally high winds.

Sporadic showers were expected to continue through Saturday, the weather bureau said.

The early weather warning said that turbulence and tornadoes might occur in central and south-west Arkansas. That warning was superseded by the later alert.

Searcy reported high winds but damage was negligible. Some 1.38 inches of rain fell in about an hour. Rainfall reports for the 24 hours which ended at 7 a.m. ranged up to 1.80 inches, reported at Mountain in western Arkansas.

Newport had 1.25 inches, Augusta 1.62, Heber Springs 1.02, Danville 1.07, Mena 1.30 and Jesselville. Heat Hot Springs, 1.05.

Violence in State Claims Lives of 18

By The Associated Press

Violent death came in many forms to 18 persons in Arkansas during the week which ended at Sunday midnight.

The 7-day tabulation showed these deaths: Traffic, 4; shootings, 5; bombing, 2; fire, 3; drowning, 2; accidental electrocution, 1; and suffocation, 1.

Shotgun blasts yesterday killed two Negroes in widely separated parts of the state.

Willie T. White, 21, was killed in a shooting at Strong, near El Dorado. Prosecutor Bill Prewett said he had filed a charge of first degree murder against Luther Ray White, 25, the dead man's first cousin. Officers said the slaying followed an argument over a card game.

At Pine Bluff, Police Capt. Doyle Cheshire said Walter Dardis, 48, was killed by a shotgun blast apparently as the result of an argument over a debt. He said a man had been arrested in connection with the shooting.

Walter Grammer, 38, of Franklin Park, Ill., suffocated in his parked automobile on State Highway 11 near Searcy yesterday. The coroner ruled the death accidental.

A passing motorist, Eldo Haynes of Cotton Plant, said he pulled Grammer out of his smoke-filled car but that the man already was dead. A few minutes later the car burst into flames and was destroyed.

State police said Grammer apparently dropped a lit cigarette into the car's upholstery after he pulled off the highway to take a nap.

A car plunged into a ditch and overturned twice near Searcy Saturday, killing two teenagers and injuring five other persons.

Killed in the mishap were Paul Smith, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Smith, and John Dove, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bird Dove, both of Wilburn—a small community near Heber Springs.

Injured were Stanley Chandler, 17; Junior Clayton, 19; Gene Clayton, 16; and Harlin Stonewalter, all of Wilburn and Eugene Gaudin, 17, of Heber Springs.

All were hospitalized at Searcy. Stonewalter, identified by officers as the driver, was released from the hospital yesterday.

Three-year-old Shirley Ann Stepp died in a Clarksville hospital yesterday of burns she suffered Saturday at her home in the Oak community.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Stepp, told hospital attendants that the little girl ran out of the house with her clothes on fire. The Stepps said they extinguished the flames by wrapping the child in old clothes. They said they had no idea how Shirley Ann's clothes were ignited.

Man Arraigned in Dynamite Slayings

PARAGOULD, Mo.—Charles J. Sexton, steadfastly denying any part in the dynamite deaths of his estranged wife and stepson, faced arraignment today on a charge of first degree murder.

Prosecutor Terry Shell said the slight, be-speckled construction worker would be arraigned in Circuit Court this afternoon.

Shell said police obtained a statement from Sexton during some four hours of questioning Saturday in which the 39-year-old man denied any part in the fatal bombing.

In the next five years about 1,000 engineering graduates from India will receive training in iron and steel technology in United States steel plants and foundries.

Leo Durocher, major league manager, is of French extraction and started his baseball career in the Catholic Junior League in West Springfield, Mass.

Cross said the hardest-hit residential section was on the south side of town where many Negroes live. Army soldiers were set up in the first Baptist church where the Red Cross established disaster headquarters. Elderly persons and children were put to bed and a kitchen was set up to feed the homeless.

Brookwood
5th Visits
Washington

Last week the Fifth Grades of Brookwood School enjoyed a visit to the many historic places in Washington, Ark.

Among the many interesting things they saw was the old cemetery where many Civil War and Revolutionary War soldiers were buried. James Black was buried there, but his grave cannot be located.

The "Bowie Knife Marker" is placed where the old Blacksmith shop once stood in which James Black, the silversmith, made the famous Bowie knife for Col. James Bowie. This was most interesting.

On their way to the Confederate Capital building they walked on the old military road that is sometimes called the "Trail of Tears" because thousands of Indians traveled this road to their new home in Oklahoma. Many died of disease and starvation.

The site of the old Tavern or "Travelers Inn" was shown to them. This is the place where Sam Houston shut himself in while "drowning" a free Texas "David Crockett" and many other famous men met at this place.

The Baptist Church was another interesting place. During the Civil War it was utilized as a hospital. One of the huge solid pillars was used as fuel to keep the wounded soldiers warm. The other, three pillars are used on the new church that now stands on the same location as the old one.

In the old Presbyterian Church a huge iron bell was seen that alerted the townspeople when the Union soldiers planned an attack on Washington.

The marker where the first Methodist Conference in Arkansas in 1822 was held, the first Hempstead County Courthouse and the house where James Black died were seen.

The largest Magnolia tree in the world was interesting. It took sixteen boys, shoulder to shoulder to measure around it. After this wonderful trip to Washington they met at the Hope Fair Park for a delicious picnic lunch prepared by the mothers of the fifth grades. That afternoon Base ball games were played between the Garland and Brookwood Girls, their score was three and three. The boys in the two fifth grades of Brookwood played, the score was Mrs. Moore's room seven and Mrs. Caldwell's room ten. Reports, Norma Jean Kinsey, Susie Waller, Becky Waller.

Spring always calls for a change from winter make-up. But this spring, it's more important than ever since fashion's colors put the emphasis on pastel and neutral shades, on the flattery of violet, soft green and gentle gray. This girl starts off her spring make-up with (left) a softening lip pomade that contains protective silicones and an antiseptic in a camphor ice base. It helps her lipstick to glide on smoothly and to stay on. For evening, her lipstick is a deep pink with just a touch of violet. Since she's a brunette, she's using (center) an ivory make-up foundation, the lightest shade she can use. It contains a bit of pink. Since her eyes are brown, she smooths on a leaf green eye shadow over a film of petroleum jelly. Girls with brown eyes can try out the delicate blue and mauve eyeshadow shades, too. Both are ideal for this spring's romantic colors.

DOROTHY DIX

Hurt Feelings Are No
Excuse for Rudeness

Dear Dorothy Dix: My sister received a book on etiquette as a gift from her sister-in-law. My sister never expressed a desire for such a book and was highly insulted on receiving it. She returned the book. Was she right, or should she have kept the book?

P. P. Dear P. P.: Before returning the book your sister should have read it.

There would be a raft of hurt feelings in this world if everyone who received a gift questioned the motive of the giver. A book of etiquette should be standard equipment in any household. At some time or other practically everyone comes across a situation that involves a small, but important, rule of manners, procedure or precedent. An authoritative source is indispensable at such a time. The book takes its place next to the almanac, dictionary and encyclopedia.

Your sister's conduct was indefensible, and I certainly feel she owes her sister-in-law an apology.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Several years ago I fell in love with Vernon, a married man. He didn't get along with his wife, but the divorce was delayed so long that I married someone else.

Finally he obtained his divorce and married another girl. Recently we met. I still love him. Would it be a sin to break up our homes and marry now?

Worried Over
Few Nuclear
Students

By RELMAN MORIN

BROOKHAVEN, N. Y. (AP) — Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower said today "educators everywhere are worried" about the scarcity of teachers and students of nuclear energy.

Representing President Eisenhower, he opened the Inter-American "atoms" for peace symposium today at Brookhaven National Laboratory, atomic research center.

More than 200 scientists and engineers from 21 Latin American nations and the United States began a five-day conference here. They are studying atomic energy needs and looking for ways to step up the use of it in South and Central America.

Dr. Eisenhower, citing the statement of an official of the Atomic Energy Commission said: "The greatest obstacle to progress in the peaceful application of nuclear energy is manpower — not understanding of money."

"We face a constant challenge from the Soviet Union in this regard. As a result of planning, correctly applied, Soviet Russia will have graduated, in the period between 1950 and 1960, about 1,200,000 scientists and engineers."

At the present rate he continued, the United States will turn out some 900,000 trained men in the same period.

Dr. Eisenhower, president of Johns Hopkins University, said: "Educators everywhere are worried about the scarcity of skilled, distinguished teachers and advanced students. It is especially acute in the basic sciences and engineers."

He added that "the training resources of the United States are strained, and will become more so in the future." However, he said, the United States is prepared to share them with "our friends."

THE STORY: Milo March, insurance investigator, has discovered two ominous facts about the death of Ann Maria Pericoloso in Rome. First, that her death, which he believes was murder, is mixed up in Italian politics; second, that an insurance ring is defrauding the company for which he is working.

CHAPTER XXVIII

The folder was simple and to the point. In the two years that Intercontinental had been operating as an Italian company, it had sold 1,012 policies. In that period 193 policyholders had died. Fourteen listed as accidental deaths—car accidents, drownings and one fall from a building—and the rest as natural deaths. They had run in age from 53 to 65. All supposedly had been in good health at the time of taking their policies. The total amount paid to beneficiaries was $5,550,000, almost $150,000. A nice chunk of change to lose in two years.

I thought about it for a while. There wasn't anything to pin down, but I was sure my first hunch was right. I picked up the phone and called Luigi Manzo. "Milo," he said, "I've been waiting to hear from you. I've been worried about those policies that have been collected. Do you think there is something wrong?"

"Do you?" I countered. "I didn't," he said. "I knew the percentage was high, but I confess you have me worried. I've put a lot into this and have had big plans about it."

"Don't worry," I said. "Even if something is wrong, the company can't blame you unless they give you the setup to investigate every case. Now I want you to do something else for me."

"Anything," he said fervently. "Look in your files while I hold on and pull out the folder on the latest policy to be paid."

"You mean Pericoloso?" "Yes. Her policy hasn't been paid yet."

I held the receiver and waited. It was almost three minutes before he was back.

"Sorry it took so long," he said. "Signorina Pianta is not yet back and I am not familiar with the filing system. But I have it now. The last insured one to die was a man named Giulio Ferrara."

"In Rome?" I asked.

"He gave me the address where the man had lived."

"The beneficiary was Rossana Caradonna. A niece."

"All right, Luigi," I said. "I probably won't talk to you again until the first of the week. Maybe then we'll have everything wrapped up. Maybe."

I became aware that it was late and I hadn't had any lunch. I phoned downstairs and had them send something to me. I had another drink to give me an appetite.

The phone rang.

It was Pieri. "No autopsy."

"So we expected that," I said. "Did they give any reasons?"

"A thousand," he said. "The girl's parents object. The church would object. It would help the political opposition because they would want to know why we didn't do it before. It would look as if the Communists had only to crack the whip to make us jump. And so on. And you still have no chance of winning a popularity contest in the Ministry of Interior. Anything else?"

"A couple of things, Piero. You talked to the Pericoloso family more than I did. Do you think they might have agreed to split the insurance money with anyone?"

He thought a minute. "No. Why?"

"Just an idea. If you get a chance, try to get in touch with them and see if anyone approached them, wanting a cut of the money."

"All right. What else?"

"I want to find out everything you can about two people, Giulio Ferrara and Rossana Caradonna. I gave him the address, 'Giulio died about a month ago. Rossana is his niece. See what you can dig up about their relationship. Did they get along, stuff like that. You know what to look for as well as I do.'"

"Why are you interested in them?" he asked.

"I don't think it has anything to do with the Pericoloso girl."

I said, "although it might. But there have been an unusual number of insured persons dying in Rome in the past two years. I'm curious about it, even if it doesn't tie in. Call it an occupational disease. Do you mind?"

"Why should I? I've got to do something or I will go out of my mind sitting around and thinking about the things I can't do. I suppose you want all the information some time yesterday?"

"That's the general idea," I said. "I'm going out pretty soon. If I'm not in when you call, keep calling back every half hour or so."

"Imagine what Vie Nuove would do with it," he said. "If they only knew that an American was giving orders to a member of the Italian police."

"Relax," I said.

"Yes, master," he said.

"Maybe we'll have the whole thing solved by the first of the week and you'll be a big hero."

I said, "I wasn't sure I felt that confident, but I might as well go on pretending."

"I'll depend on it," he laughed and hung up.

The waiter had already arrived with my lunch. I ate quickly and got dressed. Business office would soon be closing for the afternoon. I went downstairs and found a cab. I asked the driver to take me to Via Rana. He wanted to know where on the Via Rana and I told him to cruise till we found a wineshop.

CHAPTER XIX

Via Rana was quite a distance from the hotel. There was no question but that it was what might be called a slum area. The driver went slowly down the street until I finally spotted the wineshop. I told him to stop. I paid him off and got out.

I found the stairway to the rooms above the wineshop. I turned along the dark hallway until I found the last door. I knocked on it.

There was a rustling inside as though the room were infested with mice. I was about to knock again when the voice came from just the other side of the door. "Who is there?"

"Milo March," I said.

"Un minuto," I could hear a bolt being drawn. Then the voice spoke again from farther back in the room. "Avanti."

I opened the door and stepped inside.

Achille sat on one of the beds. A worn whetstone was in his lap and he was carefully sharpening the blade of his knife on it. Without stopping the steady action of the blade against the stone, he stared up at me from beneath a black lock of hair.

"I have as yet no information for you," he said.

"There is time," I said. "That is not why I came around."

"They why?"

"I want to buy some other information which I'm sure that you can give me. I look out my wallet and counted out 3,000 lire. I will pay in advance and the other money I gave you is still an advance against other information you may get." I handed him the money.

"He took the notes and handed them lovingly. 'Soon I will be doing as well as my brother did,' he said. 'What is it that you wish to know?'"

"I want to find a doctor," I said. "But not just any doctor. This one should be one who doesn't have much practice, perhaps because he drinks too much. But he is one who needs money and has reached the point where he doesn't much care what he has to do to get it. There must be a few doctors like that in a city the size of Rome."

His face was old and cynical as he looked at me. Then he would have to kill someone."

"No. He will have to do something illegal, but it does not involve killing anyone or even helping to. If that becomes necessary, I can do my own killing."

"I believe you," he said. He was lost in thought for several minutes. "There is just the man for you farther up the street," he said finally. "Cesare Teatini. I have heard people say that he was once a real doctor and surgeon. Now he is drunk all the time, and the mothers will not even let him fix a sore finger. Umberto, who runs the wineshop downstairs, lets the old man give him medicine in return for wine."

He sounds like just the man I want," I said. "Tell me, Achille, you know the name Johnny Fornessi?"

"Oh, yes. Johnny Fornessi is a big man."

"In a way," I said. "Did your brother ever work for him?"

"Many times," he said proudly. "My brother told me how many times Johnny Fornessi had to come to him and pay for information he could not get elsewhere."

"What kind of information?"

"I do not know," he hung his head. "My brother always thought I was too young."

"I understand," I said. "Was that the only kind of work your brother did for him?"

"Oh, yes. Only the information."

Before I went looking for the doctor I bought a pint of brandy. Dr. Cesare Teatini, according to a faded sign, was on the ground floor front of an equally faded house several doors past the wineshop.

I opened the door and went in. I found myself in what once had obviously been a doctor's office, but was no longer anything that could be so described. There was still a desk and there were marks on the floor where an examination table had once stood. There was an instrument chest now bare of tools.

A man was busily trying to pick up the newspapers and at the same time straighten his rumpled and greasy tie.

He looked to be in his late fifties or early sixties and the years had not been kind to him. He had put on a lot of weight, mostly around the middle. I wasn't a doctor, but even I could guess that he probably had a liver condition. He was losing his hair and what was left probably hadn't known a comb in days. There were deep circles under his eyes and his mouth was twitching. So were his hands, which I was sure meant he hadn't had a drink in several hours.

I went over and took a chair beside the desk and waited.

He finally got the newspapers more or less wadded into a ball, but he had no place to dispose of them. He muttered under his breath and finally shoved them into the corner at the end of the couch. He came toward me, not trying to look too eager.

"Well," he said, "what's the trouble? A little indisposition?"

"Are you Dr. Teatini?" I asked.

"Yes, yes. What seems to be wrong? By the way, my fee for office visits is—300 lire. Is that too much?"

"No," I said. "If anything, it is too small. I was thinking of offering you 20,000 lire."

Victor Jory and Tommy Sands, on Television Theatre (NBC-TV) last night.

The first announcement of the drama by Anthony Spinner last month identified the principal character as a wealthy American gangster named Frankie who returned to his native Italy. In the final version the gangster's name was Franz and the scene was changed from Italy to Austria.

At first glance it might appear that somebody was afraid of annoying some wealthy American gangster living in Italy. But the truth is you cannot annoy any wealthy American gangster living in Italy. You can, however, annoy innumerable Americans of Italian descent by casting one of their native countrymen in an unfavorable light. There are relatively few Americans of Austrian descent.

About a year ago I wrote a column complaining that we were seeing complaining that we were seeing too many Italian villains on television. I'm sure that I personally had nothing to do with the change, but I don't recall when I've seen a villain of Italian descent on the home screen. I urged a fair proportion of Italian villains—not too many.

The same timidity is displayed in casting other ethnic, regional, professional and business groups. It's getting terribly difficult to cast a villain. The safest way not to offend anyone is to make a

Brian Aherne Could Have Security

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—If an actor ever wanted security, Brian Aherne could have it.

The veteran of stage and screen is heading the national company of "My Fair Lady." He could probably play Henry Higgins for a decade if he wished.

"I've signed only been playing the role since March, but already it is beginning to tell on him."

"It is a tremendously demanding role. I'm on stage nearly the whole show—once I have a 12-hour work. I've found out I can't do anything else."

Audiences are large and enthusiastic. The show has already broken the house record in its first week.

"It happens everywhere we go," Aherne said in wonderment.

"In Detroit, they had to return $500,000 in cash from disappointed ticket seekers. We could probably run six months here and in San Francisco instead of 10 and six weeks."

A chain of events started when he saw the show in New York. Librettist Alan Jay Lerner met him and suggested his playing in the national company. The idea seemed far-fetched to Aherne, since he had never been in a musical.

The actor and his wife were vacationing in Munich when a cable came from producer Herman Levin. Would he consider the role still doubtful, Aherne said he'd talk about it when he returned to the United States.

He turned last fall, practiced a couple of the songs and sang them for Levin, Lerner, composer Frederick Loewe and director Moss Hart.

They knew at once he was Higgins and he can remain so as long as he desires.

Giardello to Fight Rory
Calhoun

By JACK HAND
OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The middleweight division provides the excitement this week in boxing with an interesting match between Joey Giardello of Philadelphia and Rory Calhoun of Cleveland.

Calhoun and Giardello were to have fought last December but Calhoun suffered a training camp injury. An injury to Giardello's eye forced postponement of a scheduled April match.

In his 28-fight career, Calhoun has lost only once to Spider Webb of Chicago last August. However, he is moving up into a tough league with Giardello, 26-year-old veteran.

The bout will be carried on NBC TV-radio.

Bob Boyd, a Chicago middle weight who was flying high in the 160-pound class until knocked out by Giardello last September, draws a shifty substitute opponent in Willie Vaughn in the Wednesday fight at the Chicago Stadium.
Vaughn subs for Rocky Castellani, who suffered an eye cut in a recent bout.

It will be Boyd's third bout since his Giardello disaster. Oddly enough, Vaughn's most recent fight was with Giardello, a no decision battle in Kansas City March 27 where the officials got mixed up in their scoring.

The match gets the usual
Wednesday night network ABC
radio and TV coverage.

University student who has been making quite a name for himself

Red Hot Redlegs Capture 12th Straight Game

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Redlegs, who lost the pennant on the road last year wound up the most successful trip by a National League team in 33 years today with a conviction that home is where you make it.

In a whirlwind tour of five cities
the Redlegs accomplished the following:

1. Scored 12 straight victories to equal their modern club record and achieve the longest winning streak in time majors in four years.

2. Ran to 14 a string of road games without a defeat—three short of the major league mark set by the 1916 New York Giants.

3. Made up the 5 1/2 game gap which existed between them and the Milwaukee Braves on April 28 to return home tied for first place.

The Redlegs "made it an even dozen" yesterday when they whipped the Chicago Cubs, 7-3 and 7-1
with Raul Sanchez and Don Gross each picking up his second victory and Frank Robinson driving in four of the doubleheader. The Braves, meanwhile, kept even with the Redlegs by sweeping the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-2 and 10-4.

The Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-1, after losing their seventh straight decision, 6-2, in the opener and the Brooklyn Dodgers downed the New York Giants, 5-0, in other National League games.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox held first place by a half game with a 5-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers while the second-place New York Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3. The Cleveland Indians scored a 7-4 victory after the Kansas City A's won their opener, 9-2, and the Washington Senators revolved from a 10-0 defeat to defeat the Boston Red Sox 6-2, in other A. L. games.

The Redlegs, who've averaged 7.3 runs a game for the 12 victories, collected 24 hits, including homers by Robinson and Wally Pitt, in yesterday's doubleheader.
Red-hot Don Hoak singled home the tie-breaking run in the first game but yielded the league batting lead to Robinson, .396 to .362. Sanchez gained his win for hurling the last three innings of the opener while Gross went the route in the nightcap, yielding only four hits.

The 12 straight—unbroken in any way on the road is the best by a N. L. team since the 1924 Dodgers and has been exceeded only four times in big league history. The Redlegs had only a 40-37 road record last season but were 51-26 at home—where they open a 12-game stand Tuesday night.

Hank Aaron had two hits in each game and drove in five runs in the Braves' work over eight St. Louis pitchers. Lew Burdette spun a six-hitter for his fourth victory and Taylor Phillips won the nightcap in relief of Red Murr. Ed Mathews also homered for the Braves in the second game.

Vern Law scattered 10 hits as the Pirates snapped a seven-game losing streak after 17 Philadelphia hits paved the way for a 6-3 win in the opener. De Fondy drove in two runs for the Pirates in the nightcap after Granny Hamner had three hits and Stan Lopata four for the Phils in the first game.

DOUBLE-BUBBLE — Architect Frank Lloyd Wright's double-bubble house, made of a series of vinyl-coated nylon panels sewn together and supported by air, is field-tested in Lexington, Ky. Developed by United States Rubber, the patented fabric, called Fibertin, is four times as strong as waterproof canvas, yet 40 per cent lighter in weight. The main unit is 38 feet in diameter and 19 feet high. The second unit is 24 feet in diameter and 12 feet high.

ACTOR GETS PLASTERED—The "suffer-for-my-art" theme takes a strange turn for actor Gianni Esposito in Paris, France, as a life mask is made of his face for a forthcoming film role. In first picture, technician starts to brush on layer of sticky modeling plaster. Tubes in the actor's nostrils permit him to breathe. Second picture shows the "plastering" about completed. Actor lies immobile until plaster hardens, after which it is lifted off his face, as seen at right. Cast from the face is used as a mold from which mask is made.

Bloody Finish May Be Last Italian Race

BRESCIA, Italy, (UP) — The bloody finish of Italy's Mille Miglia (thousand mile auto race) appeared today to have doomed the spirit that has taken 62 lives in Italy over a period of years.

Thirteen persons died in yesterday's race including Spanish Marquis De Portago who had hoped to marry actress Linda Christian co-driver Eddie (Gunner) Nelson of Bel
